

DELLWOOD DIGEST

By: George Steikes

Here We Go Again!

We told you last year that we were temporarily on a secondary electrical source for all of Dellwood. We knew that when that takes place, we will all be without electricity for four to seven hours. They were supposed to tell us ahead of time when that would take place. The company is dragging its feet on this one. At one point, they revealed that it would be within one week – still nothing. So we continue to wait and hopefully, when that happens, we will be able to let you know ahead of time. However, no guarantees.

And Again!

Speed in the subdivision continues to be an issue.

Four ladies got stopped out here on US 25 for driving too slow. The driver explained that the sign read 25 mph. “No, that is the highway” explained the officer. You are on highway 25 and the speed limit is 45. The woman said she was sorry and would pay closer attention to the road signs, but the other three women looked somewhat stressed. The policeman asked if there was a problem and one of the women stated that they had just been on Highway 191.

In Dellwood, 20 is the speed limit – not the highway number and there are some who still think that it is closer to 45. I can be a little more understanding going down towards 191, but not coming up. I watched a white, late model car come into the subdivision on Valentines day that was doing at least 45.

Please be careful and if you see cars or trucks that are obviously speeding, make a note of it and report it to anyone on the Dellwood Board. There are police who are willing to keep an eye out for some of these speeders. Let’s work together to keep Dellwood safe for everyone.

Spring is Coming

It is time to start thinking about a spring cleanup on our yards. A little bit of work here and there will help keep Dellwood beautiful. If you plan on putting up any fences or doing any construction work, remember that it must first be approved by the Dellwood Board.

One person asked replied, "I am just too busy!" For the most part, it boils down to four board meetings a year which usually last two hours or less.

We have lost two Special People Recently

Ron Hachet has been a resident in our community for a long time and has been very active in community projects. He passed away on Sunday, February 4.

Pamela Sue Webb has long been the owner of the Dellwood Apartments. She also has been involved in many community projects. She passed away on December 6, 2017.

Congratulations

Though Spring is not yet here, it appears that you have handled the winter well. We have not heard any reports of mail boxes being knocked down and some have mentioned how different neighbors were watching out for others. Well Done!

New Dellwood Board Members Needed

It is said that everyone is gifted, but some people never open their package! We are always open for new ideas but if that is going to take place, we will need some new board members.
